Citroën to continue its participation in the FIA World Rally Championship

Having racked up an impressive total of four manufacturers' titles, five drivers' world championships and 58 victories, Citroën will continue its participation in the FIA World Rally Championship for the 2010 and 2011 seasons.

Citroën, which is currently leading the manufacturers' standings, today confirms that it will enter the FIA World Rally Championship for the next two years (2010 and 2011).

World rallying forms an inherent part of Citroën's DNA, allowing the company to showcase its principle of Creative Technology. The team's crews have demonstrated Citroën's performance, quality and desire to succeed all over the roads and special stages of the world.

Olivier Quesnel, the director of Citroën Racing, said: "In the current tricky financial climate, it is important to keep on expressing ourselves through motorsport and through the victories of our teams and cars. The FIA World Rally Championship, where the costs remain contained, is an excellent promotional vehicle. Citroën Racing is delighted by the trust that has been placed in us by Citroën's board of directors and the PSA Group."

He added: "We are currently working with our existing driver line-up to renew their contracts. I am confident that Sebastien Loeb and Dani Sordo will be continuing their adventure with Citroën Racing into the future."
